

The Minneapolis Downtown Emergency Advisory Committee (DEAC) is presenting the First Annual Minneapolis Emergency PrepareFair. The PrepareFair will be held on Wednesday, September 29th, 2010 from 10am to 2pm in the IDS Center Crystal Court and along Nicollet Mall. The PrepareFair is a partnership of public and volunteer organizations and will serve to educate our community to the importance of, and best practices in emergency preparedness.

Community emergency preparedness starts with the community itself: the fire and police departments, hospitals, emergency responders and government. The next level of preparedness comes from the business and private sector, in other words the organizations and people in the community. The PrepareFair will have non-profit organizations displaying useful tools and providing information on emergency preparedness that will be applicable to office buildings, hotels and/or the home.

Invitations for the event have been sent to the organizations that attended the Meta-Leadership Conference last fall. However, don't wait for an invitation to let your organization know about it as the event is open to anyone looking to gain a better understanding of resources available and what to do in the case of an emergency. The DEAC group as well as DID look forward to your participation in the event.

Lastly, if your organization would like to help out with the event by providing sponsorship, please contact Ed Povlinski, a DEAC member. Ed's contact info:
